long and controversial career as an imperial enforcer, expanding American influence by force in Cuba, the Philippines, Nicaragua, Mexico, China, Haiti and France before becoming a staunch opponent of imperialism, fascism and war. For all his undoubted courage as a multiple Medal of Honor winner, Butler does not come off well here.

(1987) Smedley Butler and the FBI Most surprising, was Butler's reputation in the law enforcement community as an expert and proponent of state and federal constabularies while he simultaneously expounded left-wing views on capitalism and imperialism.

Maverick Marine: General Smedley D. Butler

Major General Smedley Darlington Butler (July 30, 1881 - June 21, 1940), nicknamed " Old Gimlet Eye ", was a senior United States Marine Corps officer who fought in both the Mexican Revolution and World War I. Butler was, at the time of his death, the most decorated Marine in U.S. history. During his 34-year career as a Marine, he participated in military actions in the Philippines, China, in Central America and the Caribbean during the Banana Wars, and France in World War I. Butler later ...

Maverick Marine: General Smedley
D. Butler and the ...

MAVERICK MARINE uses sixteen chapters to interweave two subjects: (1) The life and times of Smedley Butler and (2) The Marine Corps's role as the strong arm of American foreign policy in the early twentieth century. Schmidt's coverage of the former is nonpareil; his treatment of the latter, however, does not hold up as well under scrutiny.

That said, Smedley Darlington Butler was an American military leader, who came of age near the end of the age of manifest destiny. He was principled and patriotic, but anti-intellectual. Consequently, he found himself ever increasingly out of touch with the military industrial complex during the years when the United States was emerging as a major power on the world
